

Join us at UW Tacoma for

INTERGENERATIONAL DIALOGUES

A student workshop on Collaborative Leadership

The Pacific Northwest has a rich history of people finding lasting environmental solutions across deep differences. This workshop is about learning from that history firsthand, and the leaders who shaped it.

Join the Puget Sound Institute and UW EarthLab for a free workshop on collaboration and conflict resolution, open to all current UW students. Through intergenerational dialogue, case studies drawn from environmental history in Puget Sound, and small group conversation, you'll learn skills that travel across fields and careers, such as:

- Listening across genuine differences
- Finding common ground when interests conflict
- Rebuilding trust when a partnership breaks down

No environmental or governance background required, any major welcome. Open to all undergraduate and graduate students.

RSVP here!

October 28, 2026
12:30 - 3:00 pm

Milgard Hall, room 110
UW Tacoma

Lunch • Free to all current UW students • Attendance for the full workshop is requested

EARTHLAB
UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON

PUGET SOUND INSTITUTE